Quick Tip - Green Onions by Lynn's Recipes

Click on the above picture to watch the video of this tip.

Don't throw your green onions away. When you get down to the white part or the green parts are getting a little past their prime, cut the old part off and put the white ends in a jar, glass or vase with water. Put them somewhere in your kitchen, such as the window and they will start to grow. This way you will always have green onion or scallions on hand for your cooking.
